

"THE COMPLEX"

Rob and Ginny Townsend thought they had found the ideal apartment complex: quiet, secluded, with the ex-contractor owner living on the premises in case any emergency repairs are needed. The Woolrich Arms is an oasis in the city. After a late term miscarriage sent Ginny spiraling into a depression that threatened to destroy their marriage, they are taking a second chance at life. Starting over in a new city, with a new home and Rob in a new job. The perfect life...

Except something strange is going on at the complex. Someone is posting weird photos on the laundry room bulletin board, things are missing from their apartment, Ginny hears strange noises coming from INSIDE the walls, and always feels like she's being watched when she's alone in the apartment. As if her own reflection in the mirror is spying on her.

Is she losing her mind? Is her depression getting worse?

Then their neighbor, Mrs. Baily, is brutally murdered, and Ginny begins to suspect the killer is a fellow tenant. The same person posting the weird photos in the laundry room. How well do you know your neighbors? Could the guy across the hall be a serial killer? With a complex full of suspects, Ginny begins to spend her afternoons investigating. Is it the strange religious couple? The weird college professor? The slick womanizing businessman? The bitter bartender? The trigger happy security guard? The male nurse known as the "Angel Of Mercy"?

Or the ultra-masculine landlord, Mr. Jeffries? He knows where they live. He knows when they are home, when they're away... And he has keys to their apartment!

"THE COMPLEX" is a twisted thriller filled with edge of the seat suspense, "Rear Window" meets "Rosemary's Baby"... It scares you right where you live!

"THE COMPLEX" a screenplay by William C. Martell